TRIAL CONTINUES IN RANCH MURDER CASE

Few New Developments from Testimony of Many Witnesses During Busy Court Session; Jury Selected After Much Loss of Time

The murder trial of Mrs. Minnie Roderick and Will Woodring, jointly accused of the murder of Frank Roderick, La Honda rancher on his ranch on May 15, went through another day of questioning and cross questioning yesterday with very little information brought out that was not already known from the inquest and the preliminary hearing.

The day ended with Undersheriff Edward Farrell on the stand. Farrell was telling of the statements made by the defendants to the district attorney when District Attorney Swart questioned them in his presence soon after their arrest.

Attorney J. J. Bullock, representing Mrs. Roderick, objected to this testimony and demanded that the stenographic copies of this evidence be brought into court. District Attorney Swart opposed the admission of this evidence at this time and stated that he would be willing to produce the copies later. Today Undersheriff Farrell will be cross examined by Bullock, and it is believed that the latter will renew his demand for the stenographic copies of the defendants' statements.

A long list of witnesses was called yesterday. Julia Anderson, who worked on the Roderick ranch from the 25th of May to June 27, was the first to be called. She was followed by Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe, before whom Mrs. Roderick swore out her complaint in which she charged that her husband and treated her cruelly and asked for his arrest on a battery charge.

One piece of important evidence was brought out by the next witness, A. B. Raspadori, a neighboring rancher. He told of receiving a note from Mrs. Roderick telling him to take a mare which he had on the Roderick ranch because the sheriff was going to close everything up. No explanation of the note was given.

L. E. Sampson, another rancher, testified that on May 20, he saw Woodring talking to Mrs. Roderick; Maurice Rapley, a pioneer resident of the neighborhood, stated that he saw Woodring working a scraper near the old well were Roderick's body was found buried.

Other witnesses called during the day were Mrs. Josephine Steinberg, postmistress at LaHonda, Ray Zinc, a rancher, T. Thompson, cashier of the San Mateo County Bank where Roderick's money was deposited and Constable F. B. Grill. The latter told in detail of the finding of Roderick's body.

Practically all of these witnesses were called at the preliminary hearing which was held before Justice of the Peace Percy Jackson.

The jury was completed at about 2 o'clock Wednesday after almost two whole days of calling veniremen and after three panels of special talesmen had been exhausted. The jury finally selected consisted of five women and seven men, and is made up of the following persons:

B. L. Grow, Thomas Wilson, Fred Lorton, R. Fisher, Stella O. Ford, Florence B. Kellogg, Lynn N. Nantz, Ross Cox, Edward Feely, Joseph Horn, Mrs. J. W. Munday and Joseph E. Petersen.

The selection of the jury for this trial has set a new record for time required to obtain the necessary twelve jurors.

The prosecution opened its case immediately following the selection of the jury, when District Attorney Franklin Swart addressed the jury, setting forth his case against the two defendants.

The district attorney stated that he would prove that both defendants were guilty of the murder of Frand Roderick at his La Honda ranch on May 15. He stated that at the ranch where Woodring was a hired man, clandestine remance had sprung up between Woodring and his employer's wife, Mrs. Minnie Roderick, the other defendant. This romance, he stated, was responsible for the murder of Frank Roderick.

Mrs. Roderick, although knowing that her husband had been murdered District Attorney stated, had endeavored to mislead county officers by her story that he had run away with another woman, and later by instituting proceedings for divorce.

Throughout the hearing on both days the courtroom was crowded to capacity, and upon opening count on Wednesday, Judge Buck warned the spectators that if there were any more demonstrations such as occurred on Tuesday when an altercation took place between the judge and one of the attorneys for the defense he would have the bailiff clear the courtroom. The courtroom was not a moving picture show, the judge stated.

Building Permits

With permits amounting to $110,730 during the month of September, the total building costs in Redwood City for 1930 has now reached the sum of $712,482, the report of City Building Inspector I. C. Drathman, reveals. The total for the entire year in 1929 was $722,878, so with October, November and December yet to be counted the costs for 1930 should run considerably higher than the preceding year. September of this year far exceeds September of 1929 in the costs of permits, the totals in the pervious year being $37,465.

The figures for the three quarters of 1930 are:

First quarter	$252,157
Second quarter	144,855
Third quarter	315,470

Atherton Man Is Killed in Crash

George Knapp Killed; Others Injured in Crash At Beresford

George W. Knapp, 50, of Edgewood avenue, Atherton, was killed and his wife, Mrs. Lauretta Knapp, was critically injured when a machine driven by Knapp crashed into a heavy truck of the Pacific Freight Forwarding Company on the highway near Beresford Wednesday evening. Mrs. Lavine Taylor, 39, of Portola, was also injured but not critically.

The freight truck was headed south on the highway when the Kapp machine approached from the opposite direction. When near the truck the car is said to have swerved across the highway and crashed head on into the heavy truck. The car was reduced to a mass of wreckage.

An autopsy was held on Knapp which disclosed that he had died from the results of having five ribs crushed in. It was at first believed that he had died from a heart attack while at the wheel of the machine and that this was the cause of the wreck. The autopsy showed, however, that Knapp's heart was normal and in good condition, and that the crushed ribs had caused his death.

The driver and the two women were removed to the Community Hospital, where Knapp was found to be dead upon arrival. The two women were cared for at the hospital.

Knapp was a contractor. He was a native of Minnisota and had been a resident of this state for the past 20 years. He is survived by his widow, by two children, Betty, 5, and Iva, 6, three children by a former marriage who reside in Portland, Oregon, and by his mother Mrs. J. K. Knapp.

The body was brought to the Layng & Tinney funeral parlors here where funeral arrangements will be made later. An inquest will be conducted here next Tuesday by County Coroner J. C. McGovern.

Volleyball Teams Open Season In Twilight League

Ten Teams Start in Business Men's League Last Evening

Much enthusiasm is being shown by the men over the start of the official play in the Business Men's Volleyball League of the Sequoia evening school which started last evening. Sixty men will start the play, which according to the dope sheet will be of a higher class than in the past year.

Each team is being supplied with suits with special insignia, new balls have been secured, and a plan is being worked out for references.

The rules call for a split season so that it will be necessary for the champion of the first round to play the champion of the second for the right to lay claim to the splendid silver trophy which has been put up by the San Mateo Title Co.

Ten teams wil participate. If there is a demand for it at the end of the first round two other teams can be added.

Volleyball, which is a product of the Young Men's Christian Association as is basketball, is gaining by leaps and bounds in popularity each year with the man from 25 years of age and up. It is a non-contact game, has plenty of opportunity for the use of skill and science, and not only has plenty of exercise but also the recreational side to it.

Doctors Consider Redwood Hospital

Dr. L. M. Eastman of Pleasanton met with the physicians of Redwood City Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the proposition of starting a hospital here. Dr. Eastman placed his ideas before the physicians of the town, who will consider the plan, and if they find it advisable will recommend it to the service clubs, the chamber of commerce and other civic organizations.

The Story of Fire Prevention Week

"Fire losses are in effect a tax on every man, woman and child in the United States. This is one case where the 'taxpayers,' entirely by their own efforts, can reduce the rate.

"I hope we shall have no slackers in this campaign."

Herbert Hoover.

Fire Prevention Week is a week of education; it is the period in which the effort is made to focus the attention of every man, woman and child on the dangers of life and property which lurk in fires, and the methods by which most fires can be prevented. But Fire Prevention Week is more than just this. It is also a rallying point from which the people of America, completely aroused to fire-consciousness, should sustain their interest throughout the year in the campaign against fire.

On October 9, 1871, Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a lantern in a barn and thus started the Great Chicago Fire. The cow has become the symbol for the everyday carelessness which must be curbed if the country's disgraceful fire waste is to be restricted. The anniversary of that date is therefore set aside as Fire Prevention Week.

Does Fire Affect You?

Last year nearly 500 million dollars' worth of property was destroyed by fire in the United States. Does this fact interest you? Can you see how this loss affects either your freedom or your pocketbook? It does both. You are taxed in this way because the insurance companies to which you pay premiums distribute your money and that of other prudent men among the careless people who have fires. If the carelessness of these people could be curbed you would pay less money to the insurance companies. Your baker, your butcher and your tobacco man also pay insurance premiums and include them in the price of their goods, so that you pay their tax, too.

But more important than these financial matters is the fact that fire kills thousands of people each year in America—a human being burned to death about every half hour, usually a woman or child. Have you any right to tolerate conditions which promote such wholesale death and suffering? Can you morally refuse to devote your energy to spreading the message of Fire Prevention Week?

Most fires can be prevented. The physical factors which cause and spread fires are understood, and they are gradually being controlled. But no organization exists which can control the spirit of American carelessness. That is work upon which individuals should concentrate. That is your problem, the solution is in your hands, it is up to you to do your part.

Judge Geo. Buck Names Probation Officer This Week

Follows Recommendation Of County Probation Board

Judge George H. Buck on Wednesday named Francis J. Robinson of San Mateo, as county probation officer to succeed the late Francis Rapp. The recommendation for Robinson's appointment was made by the county probation board last week. The new probation officer was administered the oath of office and commenced his duties immediately.

The appointment of the new probation officer was necessitated by the death some weeks ago of Francis Rapp, who had held the office for a number of years.

Hospital Seeking Vaccine Patients

Physicians at the Mills Memorial hospital in San Mateo have announced that that institution will now be in a position to produce its own vaccine for combating infantile paralysis. The hospital announced this week that the physicians desired to have persons who have been cured of the disease during the past five years to communicate with the hospital. The present supply of the peninsula as well as that of other bay region cities comes from the Hooper Institute of San Francisco.

As methods of combating the disease have been perfected, physicians are using more and more of the vaccine, according to Mills hospital attendants, and it is becoming more economical and convenient for communities to acquire their own supply. For this reason Mills hospital laboratory has begun adding to its vaccine resources.

Those who were cured of the disease in 1925 or 1927 are especially invited to get in touch with the hospital laboratory. If they are unable to call in person, arrongements will be made to visit them at their homes.

The hospital will pay for all blood taken for building up the supply on the peninsula.

Native Sons Go In for Pee-Wee

The members of Redwood Parlor, No. 66, Native Sons of the Golden West, have taken to golf, that is the indoor miniature variety. Next Thursday night following their regular meeting, the members will start a tournament at the Broadway Junior Golf Course and will be the guests of the owners. Much interest is being centered in the coming event and a large crowd is assured in the spectators' galleries when "Fonsy" Liguori, Clarence Junker, Louie Lodi, Charlie Curran, Homer Porter, Phil Kreiss, Omar Doyle and the rest of the Natives start their "stuff."

Prizes will be awarded those making the best scores.

Dock Builder Visits Harbor

The Redwood City harbor was inspected on Wednesday by Francis Betts Smith, better known as "Drydock" Smith, nationally-known harbor designer who will make recommendations for the development of the Redwood City water front facilities.

Smith was met here by City Manager E. A. Rolison, Mayor D. R. Stafford, City Engineer C. L. Dimmit, Howard I. Wood, manager of the chamber of commerce, Councilman Charles Hildebrand and others, and was taken around the city's water front. The latent possibilities of the harbor impressed the visitor, and he predicted a great future for the port development here. Smith is a dock and drydock builder and was the man in charge of constructing the breakwater at Santa Barbara at the time that City Manager E. A. Rolison was city manager of that city. It was through Rolison's influence that the dock builder was brought here. At noon he was a guest of the Redwood City Kiwanis club.

J. M. Robb returned this week to his position with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, after a two months' visit in Chicago and other mid-western cities. While east he visited with his brother and mother, Mrs. Anna-Bennett Robb, who was a resident of this city for several years prior to her removing to Chicago.

Kiwanians Elect Club Directors

Club Hears Talk on League Of Nations and World Court Plan

A board of ten new directors was elected by the Redwood City Kiwanis club at its regular meeting Wednesday noon. A ticket of 20 names was chosen at the previous meeting from which the ten directors were to be elected. The ten chosen by the club were C. M. Doxsee, John Gill, Edward Harrison, J. D. Hedge, A. S. Ligouri, Edward I. McAuliffe, Duncan Reynard, Carl Stoner and Sam Winklebleck.

This board will hold a meeting next week and will elect the officers who will guide the destiny of the club during the coming year. The new officers and directors will take office at the first meeting of next year.

An interesting talk was given before the club Wednesday by Perry Evans, well-known attorney of San Francisco, who spoke on the League of Nations and the world court. The speaker stressed the fact that a great deal of misinformation had been disseminated in this country concerning the league of nations and has been prejudicial to the league. He pointed out the value of the league in settling disputes between nations and in promoting world peace. The work of the world court was also explained.

Good Highways, Modern Tools Cut Fire Loss

Forestry Service Reports Reduction in Expense Of Operation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (U.P.)—Modern equipment, improved roads, and efficient organization have kept down the loss suffered from forest fires in drought stricken areas, according to a report issued by the Forest service of the Agriculture department.

Forest fire units have been greatly hampered by lightning fires, 1,060 such fires having been reported since January 1 in the northwestern National forests alone. A new record was set in the eastern region when 76 lightning fires started by one storm were recorded by the Ouachita Forest in Arkansas.

This year's operations have brought about greater success in preventing fires from covering large areas of ground. This was due to ability in putting out fires before they had gained a start.

Expense concurred in forest fire fighting was increased during the last 10 days of August in Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California. About $7,000 a day was averaged in the two northwestern regions, and half that amount in California.

Total fire expenses in the eastern region amounted to $13,943 in the closing days of August. Dangerous fires in the Lake State territory increased the cost in that area to about $1,500 a day. In that region approximately 12,800 acres of national forest were burned over since January 1.

Tomorrow Is Last Day To Register

Tomorrow at midnight the time to register for the November election will expire. All who have not registered are being urged by County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese to do so at this time. So far the registration has not been materially changed since registration closed for the primary election with 32,306 names registered, and no very great increase over that figure is expected.

County Clerk Kneese also is drawing the attention of voters to the fact that if they moved from one precinct into another since registering, a change must be made in their registration.

FERRANDO TO ANSWER

Carl Ferrando, arrested following a raid on his home on Bradford street by Officers Sylvester Douglass, W. H. Thorpe and Edward Fogarty of the local police department September 25, will appear before City Judge Edward I McAuliffe next Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock to answer to a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

SOUTH CITY WILL HOLD JUNIOR LIVESTOCK SHOW

To encourage farm boy and girl members of the 4-H Clubs and Future Farmers of American in the western states to raise increasingly better quality baby beef, lambs and hogs, a Junior Livestock and Baby Beef Show will be held at the South San Francisco Union Stock Yards, October 27, 28 and 29.

"The Junior Livestock and Baby Beef Show will be the first of its kind ever held in the West and devoted exclusively to younger exhibitors, and is sponsored by the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce," states Manager E. W. Stephens. "Through the offering of cash prizes totaling $7000, agricultural and livestock interests expect to augment the work of the educational forces of the Western States in stimulating the interest among farm boys and girls of the Western States in the feeding and production of better livestock of all classes.

Entries of livestock exhibits at the Junior Show to be held in South San Francisco are limited to members of the 4-H Boys and Girls Clubs and the Future Farmers of America who will vie with one another for the honor of exhibiting the grand champions of the show.

More than three hundred youthful exhibitors are expected to participate in the event, which is the outgrowth of former exhibitions at which the Junior Show was a division instead of being the principal attraction. As in the past the exhibit will be purely educational without admission charge.

The show will, as in previous years, conclude with an auction of all exhibits. In many cases stock is sold at premium prices, said by various San Francisco business interests to encourage the young growers.

Exchange Club Told of S. S. F. Com. Chest

County Coroner Tells Work Of Chest System For Town

Members of the Redwood City Exchange club were given an interesting talk on South San Francisco's community chest plan Tuesday evening at the regular weekly meeting of the club by County Corner J. C. McGovern, one of the originators of the plan in South San Francisco, Dr. McGovern stated that the community chest plan similar to that used in San Francisco had solved many of the city's problems. The plan has been in operation there for the past several years, and Dr. McGovern states that the people of South San Francisco would not now be without the community chest.

Each year an annual subscription is taken up by the community chest committee which calls on every house and business place in the community. The factories are also visited and make donations which are pledged by their employes. A goal of $5000 is set and raised each year.

In operation, the amount raised has proven slightly more than has so far been found needed. A surplus of about $5000 has now been built up which is being held in case of some major disaster.

The chest in South San Francisco relieves the people of the town of the bother of individual solicitation by the various agencies which raise money by this means, each being budgeted with a certain amount from the community chest. Many poor families are also relieved and aided by this fund.

The chairman of the meeting Tuesday night was Francis Tinney. A short talk on dentistry was given by Dr. W. B. Langston, a member of the local club.

Famous Alaska Dogs To Be Here

A big treat is in store for the kiddies, as well as for the grown-ups of Redwood City, when Captain Gatchell's famous Alaskan dogs, "Semi" and Queennie", visit the Sequoia Theatre. The two canines, said to be the most intelligent dogs on the stage today, will perform tricks, the like of which have never before been seen, according to Thomas Kane, the manager of the Sequoia Theatre.

At 1 o'clock they will be seen in front of the theatre and at 2:30 they will make their appearance on the stage of the show house and will perform in conjunction with the regular performance, which includes the first chapter of Rin Tin Tin's talking serial, "The Lone Defender."

Suit Filed Here For Fall Off Horse

Suit for $15,600 was filed this week in the superior court by Doris St. Clair Treblicot, San Francisco society girl against the Menlo Riding and Driving Academy at Searsville. The suit is the result of a ride which Miss Treblicot took on a horse hired from the academy, and which she claims was fracious and unsafe. She was thrown by the horse when he became unmanagable and ran away and charged that she received serious injuries.

The plaintiff charges in her complaint that she received a fractured right arm and right knee as well as sprains and bruises. She is represented in her action by Spencer G. Prime, San Francisco attorney.

Loyalty from Students Should Be Required

On the editorial page of the Evening Express, stated to be the oldest daily newspaper published in Los Angeles, appeared an article under the caption "Loyalty and Free Education," that was worthy of being cut out, displayed in the classroom and firmly impressed upon the students. The newspaper frankly made the statement that loyalty to the Government, which guarantees them the boon of free education in American schools, is little enough to ask of the youthful recipients. It was pointed out that while the school authorities have no power or disposition to interfere with the religious, political, social or economic beliefs and principles of the pupils, it is their duty to inculcate in these pupils a spirit or respect for and loyalty to the principle of liberty connected with order, which "is the root from which grows the institutions of the Government." It was held that pupils who refuse to accept such teaching and have not that loyalty should not expect to receive the favor of free education.

The Express is clearly awake to the subtle propaganda of the communist. It is aware of the fact that in its city as in many leading cities of the United States, agents of Communism have surreptitiously planted in many students' minds the seeds of their pernicious doctrines. The article concludes: "It is the privilege of any who may be dissatisfied with a law or any number of laws to agitate their repeal. There are orderly and lawful ways to secure change of the Constitution and form of government. Any citizen may propose such changes. But it is not lawful to plot the overthrow of the Government by force, and any who sympathize with those who advocate such action, or enter into plots for the purpose, surely forfeit the right to favors from the Government.

Ghost Writer Statesmanship

Since the conduct of the Democratic Congressional campaign was virtually turned over to press agents and ghost writers the defects of that form of artistry in politics have become conspicuous. Press agentry and ghost writing are a phase of literature applied to commercialism. They aim at immediate high-power sales, at a rapid exploitation of public opinion.

But in politics a longer breath and a broader vision are essential. The intelligent politician builds for tomorrow as well as for today. His offerings must wear. He must show personality and be willing to accept responsibility.

Canned political discussion of this sort tends also to be unrestrained by the professional politician's caution. Hard times are recurrent phenomena, following overdone inflation and speculation. When they come they furnish an opportunity to criticize the administration in power, and the temptation to carry that criticism to irrational excess is not easily resisted by amateur politicians. The seasoned statesman has learned to be wary in avoiding overplaying this kind of attack. He at least tries to avoid an appearance of satisfaction that hard times have opportunely arrived.

The public which suffers finds no compensation in the fact that politicians are eagerly seeking to make a profit out of that suffering. No one has done more than President Hoover to mitigate the evil effects of the present economic disturbance, and the country is keenly aware of his efforts. Democratic leaders who understand the psychology of such situations must regret that a good deal of the Democratic National Committee literary output has too nearly resembled hurrahing for hard times.

Such hurrahs are wretched in taste and deplorable in strategy. What the voters want is to see hard times vanish. They cannot be much impressed by the extravagant unfairness and enthusiastic pessimism of Raskob's press agents and ghost writers, too evidently hoping to declare political dividends on the misfortune of the public at large.—N. Y. Herald-Tribune.

Losses due to the drought are small compared to losses due to crime, Calvin Coolidge declares. Collier's Weekly estimates that 6,000,000 arrests were made in American cities during the past year. However, many of the larger cities are going after their lawless elements in determined fashion.

Boosting Letter Postage

Postmaster General Brown is hardly playing with a popular issue in his advocacy of a 2½-cent rate for letters. No public support has asserted itself, and if congress has its ears to the ground it will make short shift of the proposal.

If the public's sole choice lies between an $85,000,000 annual post office department deficit or 2½-cent first class postage, there would be an overwhelming choice of the deficit. For half a century it has been the will of the nation that the postal rate for personal correspondence shall be low enough to encourage universal and habitual communication between people through the medium of the mails.

An increase in the first-class postal rate would be a tax on the family, social and business life of the nation throughout their multitudinous ramifications.

Before congress raises the first-lass postal rates, let is wisely decide that it is high time for the government to stop the congressmen and senators from mailing free political propoganda from their offices to their constituents just before election. There is no reason on earth why these politicians should have free use of the United States mails. Why should the government hire men to handle this stuff? Then again, is there any reason why every department of the federal government should not bear its own postage? It bears its other necessary expenses. Why not pay its postage? If the American people will wake up, there'll be no 2½-cent rate for letters neither will there be an annual deficit in the post office departmeant.

Clean Up!

The finest evidence of good citizenship is a clean body, a clean house, and a clean shop.

Clean up!

Wastebaskets should be made larger and storerooms smaller.

Half the attics and basements in the United States are filled with junk.

The drawers and pigeonholes of most desks are crammed with junk.

The workrooms, storerooms, and yards of the average factory contain enough junk to sink an ocean liner. It occupies floor space that costs about 50 cents a square foot a year to maintain. It slows up production; gives the shop an appearance of disorder; lowers the quality of the product.

"It might come in handy." Yes, but in the meantime it will eat you up in charges for rent and handling.

The employer who operates a clean, orderly shop is doing a public service because he is teaching his men by example the lesson of cleanliness.

Prudent Spending

By H. R. DANIEL,
Secretary American Society for Thrift

"We must not overlook the fact that the standard of living of the American people is steadily improving. The bare necessities of life are not enough. We have our rightful conveniences, our comforts, our luxuries. In this way we are developing new industries as well as furnishing employment for more people and for more capital. All of this is within the meaning of true American progress and true American thrift. For America never goes backward."

It was with these words that S. W. Straus recently sought to use his widespread influence to encourage judicious, thrifty spending by the people of this country as an aid to business. Perhaps his words will be of help just now when every effort is being made to stimulate general business activity. He always urged that in times such as the present people should spent money with as much freedom as might be considered within the bounds of prudence from the standpoint of the individual.

He never advocated the widespread spending of money by the public simply to encourage business. He felt that the individual should always live within his means and at all times be prepared for the proverbial rainy day. He gave voice to the belief that the general expenditure of money by individuals for things they could not afford could only result in dangerous inflation and a situation of economic unsoundness. At the same time he advocated a policy of judicious sperding by those who could afford to spend in order to help business. Particularly in times of business depression, he believed that those who could afford to spend money freely in ways that would help relieve unemployment and promote better business should do so.

"Judgment," he pomted out, "must be used in deciding the proper balance to be maintained between spending and saving by the individual. We should not cultivate habits of miserliness, neither should we spend beyond our means. No man has the right to pauperize himself today and jeopardize his future economic independence under any circumstances or for any reason whatever."

Thou, who are not master of the morrow, puttest off the right time.—Epicurus.

Love's Sacrifice
By Mildred Barbour

"I was at a wedding yesterday," admitted Sally, as if that explained everything.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

Sally Todd and Lois Montgomery leave home to seek their fortunes in New York.

Sally's brother, Bert, who is in love with Lois, follows them.

Lois meets a young man whom she knew when she was a wealthy woman's secretary.

He and a chap named FRISBY show her and Sally little attention, but Lois' thoughts are chiefly on the problems of existence.

Lois finally gets a job with a firm of interior decorators. Sally struggles for a foothold in the movies. They have a hard time making both ends meet.

Sally enters hospital training, finally convinced that the films hold no future for her.

Lois is absorbed i nher own work.

During her employer's illness, she is sent to the palatial residence of James Walton to make a preliminary report.

Sally's liking for gay company causes a coolness between herself and Lois.

It also involves Lois in difficulties with Bert.

Lois is strongly attracted to Walton, who is much older than herself, and very rich and distinguished.

Chapter 19

When he asks her to marry him, she consents gladly.

In Time of Need

The wedding was as simple as Walton could have wished. Lois looked very lovely and very young in a simple traveling gown, with a corsage of pale mauve orchids. There were no attendants, and the little company was limited to Mrs. Dunleigh and Miss Draper and Sally and several men friends of Walton's—business associates mainly, Lois learned.

There was a wedding-breakfast afterward at the Grande. It was the first time Lois or Sally had ever been inside those autocratic portals. Sally whispered to Lois:

"I feel every minute that somebody's going to tell me that the servant's entrance is in the rear! Gosh, old dear, you've certainly picked something good for yourself!"

Later the newly-married pair sailed, and Sally and one of Walton's friends accompanied them to the boat. Sally was flirting shamelessly, and Walton's friend seemed to be enjoying it. When the line was on her way, he suggested to Sally that they make a day of it, so they attended a matinee, dined together in the evening, and danced until Sally nearly overstayed her leave of absence again.

She went back to the bleak little hospital room that she shared with another student, and sat on the side of her cot and stared at the blank walls and the tired girl who was sleeping in the adjoining bed.

"What a life I'm in for, if I don't land somebody like Lois!" she thought. She drew off her silk stockings and put them away and laid out a cotton pair for the morning. When she climed into bed, she found it difficult to sleep, pleasantly weary though she was.

Old scenes returned to her. Vividly she was remembering the morning, a few years ago, when she and Lois had slipped away from the ranch together and taken the train for New York. What a precarious adventure it had been, and what tough sledding, at first. Well, Lois had come through it with flying colors! She had reached a goal beyond the wildest dreams of either of them. She was safe. But Sally—Sally was very uncertain about her own future. She felt that night that she'd wasted several very precious years. Certain memories weren't too pleasant. Martin Frisby was one of them. Sally wished she'd heeded Lois and not wasted her time on Frisby.

The more she thought about the future the more blue she became. She supposed she was missing Lois subconsciously. Even though they hadn't seen so much of each other of late, she'd always known that she could run to Lois in time of trouble or telephone her, if she was feeling blue. Soon the ocean would be between them, and Sally was wise enough to know that more than the ocean would separate their lives hereafter. There would be a vast social gulf between Mrs. James Jerington Walton, wife of the millionaire, and Miss Sally Todd.

Sally sensed that Walton neither liked her nor approved of her. He had been very polite to her, but she knew. She could see him taking Lois from her, keeping his wife away from her girlhood chum, perhaps without letting Lois suspect what he was doing. There was no doubt in Sally's mind that Lois loved her husband. Perhaps his money and position had had something to do with it, but not much.

Sally tossed restlessly, growing more and more wakeful.

"I'll look and feel like a boiled owl tomorrow!" she thought disconsolately.

Though she hadn't told Lois, she had received a severe reprimand from the superintendent of nurses on several occasions when she wasn't up to form after her day off. She didn't want to run the risk of being suspected of indiscretions.

She slept at last, but she felt that she had barely closed her eyes when her roommate shook her with that maddening air of virtue and cheerfulness that those who have not been out late the night before love to display in waking those who have.

"Wake up! The alarm went off ten minutes ago. Hustle!"

Sally opened one eye and groaned. The other girl was grinning down at her.

"It must have been some wedding, to last all day and half the night. My eye, but you look a wreck! Wait till 'Bones' sees you."

"Bones" was the name by which the superintendent of nurses was known among the students.

Sally bathed hasitly and scrambled into her clothes. Hot coffee helped to keep her awake for awhile. But, in the middle of the morning, the inevitable slump came. Her eyelids drooped. She smothered her yawns, for she felt the sharp, suspicious glances of "Bones" whenever the superintendent passed that way.

Sally was afraid. She didn't dare risk another reprimand and she knew that "Bones" would be sure to give her one, if she could.

Sally felt that she had to resort to desperate measures. Once before—the morning after Martin Frisby's car had broken down, and she'd trudged for hours along the highway—she had done so. If she hadn't—if she'd gone to pieces, as she was sure she would have, without a stimulant—she could have said good-by to her chances of becoming a graduate nurse. For, if she had collapsed, there would have been an investigation, and she'd have been dropped from training, with no chance of getting into another hospital. Her career would have been finished before it was begun. Sally was afraid of that. It could still happen.

She watched her chance and made an excuse to go to the drug room when she knew the nurse in charge had gone to the laboratory. She emerged a few minutes later and darted up to her own room. When she returned to the ward where she was on duty she looked greatly refreshed. There was a sparkle in her eyes and color in her cheeks. No one could have dreamed that she hadn't had the eight hours of sleep the night before.

She was gay, she was happy. Her forebodings of the night before had passed. She even made an impudent face at "Bones" when the superintendent's back was turned. A young surgeon who was passing caught her at it and barely hid a grin. Sally had always amused him. She was a bright spot in the dreary life of the hospital. He knew that she'd never make a good nurse, but she was a likable youngster.

Sally caught his glance, realized that he'd seen her, and flushed guiltily. But, nevertheless, she said audaciously: "She makes me tired. She always has it in for me, whether I've done anything or not."

"Havn't you done anything?" Dr. Randolph smiled.

"I was at a wedding yesterday," admitted Sally, as if that explained everything.

He laughed. "I thought it was a wake, from the way you looked early this morning.

He passed on with a nod, and Sally, in a deserted corner of the corridor, did a few dance steps from sheer high spirits. She liked Dale Randolph immensely. He loked as if he'd be good fun.

HOW IT BEGAN... By Russ Murphy

Copyright, 1930, Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

HOQUIAM, Wash, Sept. 25 (UP)—Back in 1914 there were several so-called "iron man" pitchers in organized baseball, and Gregg was one of them. Gregg went from the old Pacific Northwest League to Cleveland in the American League where he set up a great record for a year or two. Then he had a bad season and returned to Seattle in the Pacific Coast League, rated as an "old man."

With Seattle Gregg returned to form, had another great season and was taken back to the American League as pitcher where he remained two seasons, then came back to the Pacific Coast, retired from professional baseball and set himself up in business here.

That was eight years ago. More for pastime than anything else Gregg hurled occasional Sunday games for Hoquiam in the Timber League, a semi-pro circuit in Southwest Washington. Relying on his remarkable baseball brain rather than his lanky left arm he consistently won more games than he lost.

Starting the 1930 season, however, it was apparent that the 40-year-old flipper was not up to standard any more.

FIND OLD SKELETON

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y. —(UP)—Archaeologists from the Rochester Museum of Art and Science have begun extensive excavations on the farm of Roger P. Clark at Willow Point, near here, following the discovery of a 1,500 year old Skelton believed to be that of an Indian of the third Algonkian period. In addition to the skeleton, a large pot with impressed designs and fragments of other crockery were unearthed, leading to the belief that further exeavation might reveal relics ranking with the most important archaeological finds in the state.

Sir Walter Scott Goblet Seen at Glamis Castle

GLAMIS CASTLE, Scotland, Oct. 2—(UP)—A masisve silver-gilded goblet from which Sir Walter Scott once drank his deoch-andorius, has been an object of interest in the castle for years.

The cup is emblematic of the family name of Bowes-Lyon of the Earls of Strathmore, and in former days had to be emptied to the Earl's health.

NEW RADIO TUBE TO SEND HEAT; POWER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25. (UP)—New investigations into possibilities of the short-wave high-power vacuum tube give hope of producing radio waves which will do the family cooking, provide wireless illumination for homes, reduce pain and cure disease, according to Dr. Willis R. Whitney, director of the General Electric Research laboratories.

Simplified mechanisms and a reduction in the cost of producing large volumes of radio energy are problems new facing solution. With these problems disposed of, control of the new power immediately will open up lines of advance in industry and therapeutics hitherto closed to science, Dr. Whitney stated.

In experimenting with the tube, is was found that by placing a wire over a table at a distance of a few feet from a radiating aerial, which was a copper bar about 10 feet long, a sausage in a glass container suspended from the bar was soon cooked thoroughly. The tube from which this power was produced was two feet long and five inches in diameter.

Different applications of this tube have been under investigation. For generations heat has been known to be useful in alleviating pain and curing some diseases. Recently medical research has indicated that fever temperatures in the body are destructive to certain disease germs. The new vacuum tube produces this heat, causing blood temperatures to rise to 100 degrees Fahrenheit in 15 minutes.

Dr. Whitney stated that as yet the high-power short-wave tubes are being used for experimental purposes only and the task now before the investigators is to bring them into practical usefulness at a reasonable cost and discover their possibilities for service to the world.

ST. LOUIS COMPUTES COST OF SOOT FALL ANNUALLY

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 25. (UP)— The cost per family in St. Louis for expenses due to the soot fall here each winter has been estimated by the Smoke Abatement League at $350 a year.

Through publicity and enforcement of city by-laws the league hopes to cut the fall of soot from 800 tons per square mile to 400.

J. L. Hamilton, director of the league itemized as follows the expenses incurred by each family here due to the smoke nuisance; laundry, $100; cleaning draperies and rugs, $25; wall decorations, $50; painting, $25; house cleaning, $150.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3 (UP)—Bela Lugosi, noted stage actor, will be seen on the screen in the title role in "Dracula," which he created behind the footlights three years ago.

"Dracula" is the story of a human vampire who attacks victims for their blood. Yet humor is not lacking in drawing of a line with garlic that must not be crossed. Universal, which will make the picture, will have an excellent chance for sound effects, the touch of bat wings against window panes, for example.

Hale Hamilton, who was famed on the stage for his portrayal of Wallingford, of Get Rich Quick fame, will take the part of Colonel Bebaudy in "Beau Ideal."

Herbert Brenon is directing "Beau Ideal" for R. K. O. as a sequel to his famous "Beau Geste."

Evelyn Brent, who was long under the Paramount banner, is to be seen in "Madonna of the Streets" for Columbia. She will have capable direction by John Robertson. Robert Ames will play opposite Miss Brent.

There is only one feminine role in Pathe's "The Painted Desert," and Helen Twelvetrees has it. William Boyd is the star. The company is on location at Tuba City, Arizona.

Dorothy Knapp, who was so decorative in Ziegfield's Follies for quite some time, will have one of the leading feminine roles in "Under the Cock-Eyed Moon," a western burlesque. The picture is second of a series featuring Bob Carney and Si Wills.

Kenneth MacKenna is to be seen in "Sin Takes a Holiday." Constance Bennett's new starring picture.

Now that John Boles, a busy young man, has completed work in "Lilli" for which he was borrowed by Samuel Goldwyn, he is back on the Universal lot ready to start in "Ressurection." He will play the part of Prince Dmitri. Lupe Velez will enact the role of Katusha Maslova as soon as she completes work in "East is West."

The ugly Louis Wolheim is a director as well as an actor now. He is directing "Sheep's Clothing" for R. K. O. Among those in the cast are Mary Astor and Hugh Herbert, as well as Wolheim.

Richard Dix finds his role of Yancey Cravat in "Crimarron" picturization of Edna Ferber's story, difficult. He had to memorize 11 pages of dialogue for one scene.

Robert Woolsey and Bert Wheeler soon will start work in another laugh film, "Hook, Line and Sinker."

Fish and Game Notes

No other problem has created as much discussion and confusion for sportsmen during the past several years as the present duck limit controversy. Although the Division of Fish and Game has made a ruling on this important subject there seems to be a great deal of misunderstanding in hunting circles as to what law will be upheld, the federal or the state regulations.

The Division of Fish and Game will enforce the state law which declares that the lawful limit on ducks will be 25 per day, per hunter, 25 in possession and 50 ducks per week. The state law could not be changed for the coming season.

The federal regulation reads that the duck limit, per hunter, throughout the United States shall be 15 birds per day and a possession limit of 30.

It has been suggested that since there is an apparent shortage of ducks, and since the hunter wishes to remain on the safe side of the question, perhaps the following course is the best to pursue: Comply with that part of the federal law which calls for a daily limit of 15 birds, with that part of the state law which allows 25 in possession, and that part of the state law which sets a limit of 50 ducks per week.

It must be remembered that the federal regulation has higher power than the state act. Therefore, the hunter should divide his attention between the state and federal rulings and obey the state law at all instances except where it is interceded by the federal act.

Practically the same controversy arises over the goose limit. The state regulation allows 8 per day and 8 possession, while the federal regulation limits the bag to 4 per day and 8 possession.

Because of the migratory character of the ducks—they claim neither country nor continent—it was ruled that the government should practice protective measures where such measures were necessary.

It has been stressed by competent scientists and naturalists that ducks have fallen off approximately 50 per cent in hatching activities during the past brooding season. This condition was caused mainly by droughts, it was said, and the droughts causing a shortage of food naturally caused a shortage of birds.

From many localities the report was hearlded that the ducks were as plentiful as ever and that there was no necessity for a federal cut in the bag limit. Naturalists explained this condition by the fact that since the drought caused a shortage of feeding ponds—many fresh-water lakes and ponds became dry—it also caused a greater concentration in the places where food existed.

There is not a single duck in many localities that formerly harbored thousands of birds, it was pointed out. To shoot them indiscriminately in the localities where they have found food will mean a lesser number to return to the nesting grounds next season.

The Bureau of Biological Survey, which is directly in charge of the administration of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, reported to Congress that they had been conducting an extensive investigation in the migratory bird question for the past three years and that they had learned definitely that the ducks and geese were not holding their own. Paul G. Redington, chief of the bureau, said: "We need sound public sentiment in favor of the observance of the law and a willingness on the part of sportsmen and conservationists generally to observe all the restrictions that are necessary to the preservation of wild fowl."

More than eight hundred smallmouthed bass have been planted in Baldwin Lake, near Folsom, by the California Division of Fish and Game. These fish will be developed in the lake and then will be planted in suitable streams at the proper season.

Similar fish that have been planted in the lake heretofore have done so well that it seemed advisable to increase the supply.

In a report on Baldwin Lake conditions it was revealed that the smaller fish "have so much good protection and feed in the shallow flats that they are immune from the depredations of the larger bass. There is also so much deep water and feed in other parts of the lake that the large fish develop easily."

Baldwin Lake was acquired by the Division some time ago for the purpose of maintaining fish rearing ponds in the district. It is proving itself to be an excellent location, according to sportsmen who are interested in the work.

By planting fish of various sizes in the lake at this time, sportsmen will be assured a good supply of fish to plant in the streams next season instead of waiting for three years, Division officials said.

Eighty cans of black bass have just been shipped to the Izaak Walton League at Palo Verde and Blythe by the Division of Fish and Game, according to a report on file in the office of John L. Farley, executive officer.

These young fish will be placed in natural rearing ponds along the Colorado river by the members of the league, it was announced, and at the proper season, when the fish have attained a good size, they will be planted in the main stream.

The rearing ponds have been developed by the league and will prove to be of great value in the propagation of black bass, Division officials declare.

It was also announced that another shipment of ten cans, about 300 fish, were shipped to Wagas Lake, near Lancaster, for planting. A carload of bass will also be shipped to the southern part of the state very soon. These fish will be placed in the rearing ponds as they arrive and will be cared for by the sportsmen in that section of the country.

LONDON, October 2 (U.P.)—The thatched cottage, for centuries an integral part of England's famous countryside, and which was threatened with oblivion has been granted a new lease on life.

Reports have been received from some sections that the art of thatching is being revived and that the villagers are tiring of modern construction.

Means nave been found of making the picturesque brown straw roofings secure from danger of fire and likewise discourage birds, insects and mice from nesting in it.

SPEAKING of SPORT

BY FRANK GETTY

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY
United Press Staff Correspondent

The sport of yacht racing, given impetus by the races for the America's Cup which made the country "yacht-conscious," can be expected to boom for the next few years. While the business of challenging for and defending cups is a rich man's game, any man who can afford an automobile, can get a taste of the sport.

Small craft, sea-worthy within reasonable limits on protected waters and small and light enough to be swung up in the loft of the family garage during the winter months can be bought new for less than $400—or second hand in good order for $75 or $100. Upkeep amounts to little. They chiefly require a few Saturday afternoons in the springtime for application of paint and re-caulking, a little care of sails and gear and that is about all.

Beginning there one can range upward in accordance with ambitions and pocketbook, to the million dollar class of Enterprise and Shamrock.

Yachting is a clean sport, both in its conduct and its traditions. After all, it is difficult for the average man to be petty in the midst of the sea. By its very nature it cannot well be commercialized. Professionalism cannot enter very deeply into it for there are no profits. True there are professional sailing masters such as Ned Heard of the Shamrock, who sails rich men's yachts for them at a stated price. But their part is insignificant and the manner in which Harold Vanderbilt, an amateur, outsailed Heard, Britan's best professional, is a measure of its unimportance.

Yachting takes one out where there is no dust, where the quiet of the water soothes jaded nerves and the salt air is bracing.

The Cup race gave yachting its new impetus and this month come the International Fishermen's races with Canada when off Halifax the Lunenberg schooner Blue Nose will defend its championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleet against the Thebauld of Gloucester, believed to be the fastest schooner under the American flag. This race will be sailed by men who, for the most part make their living on the sea and for hard-sailing with no quarter given or asked, it ranks equal to or above the cup races.

That will about close the racing season of 1930. But as a by-product of the years activities there will be left for racing next year a fleet of boats of cup defending classification. The Resolute, defender in 1920, and the Vantie Resolute's rival, still are afloat. Yankee and Weetamoe, built as prospective cup defenders this year, will be available for 1931 races, it is understood. Their owners still are unconvinced that the Enterprise outclasses them and there may be some exciting races for the coming season. Whirlwind, the fourth of the prospective cup defenders built this year was a failure and probably will not race again, at least not without considerable alteration.

There has been much talk of the possibility of Enterprise going abroad for European races. Its owners have no such plans at present although there is a possibility of it being used for a lengthy cruise next Fall. There is good reason to believe that if American yachtsmen send an entrant to European reggattas they may build a boat for the purpose rather than send one now afloat.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN SOUTH

Word was received early this week of the death in Long Beach of Mrs. A. M. Porter, former well-known resident of this city. Mrs. Archer Kincaid, a close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Porter yesterday received a copy of the Long Beach-Press-Telegram with the full account of Mrs. Porter's death, which is reprinted herewith. Mrs. Porter passed away last Thursday and was buried in Long Beach last Saturday. The family while here resided on Birch street. Mr. Porter was connected at that time with the county engineer's office. They left here in 1917. Both Mr. and Mrs. Porter were graduates of Stanford University, and prior to coming here were residents of Palo Alto.

The Long Beach account reads:

"Hundreds of women in every walk of life were shocked and grieved yesterday to learn of the sudden passing of Mrs. Lillian R. Porter, president of the Woman's City club, who was to have opened the autumn season, Friday, Oct. 3.

"Several weeks ago she became ill, but had convalesced steadily. The past week she had seemed entirely well from the heart affection which caused her death and was making plans for her aproaching work as head of the largest woman's club of the city. When her husband, Arthur M. Porter, went home at noon Tuesday he found her illness had returned. She was removed to a hospital and passed away at 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

"Mr. and Mrs. Porter came to Long Beach eight years ago from Coalingo. Mrs. Porter was a native of Canada. Being deeply interested in civic and church affairs, she gradually affiliated herself with such work. She was a member of the board of directors of the Long Beach Welfare league, chairman of the committee on the industrial plant and stores operated by the league, a member of the executive committee of the Long Beach Tuberculosis association and a member of the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian Association.

"Mrs. Porter had served as president of the Woman's auxiliary of the Long Beach Social Welfare league; president of the Long Beach chapter, Delphia society; president Pastor's Aid of the First Presbyterian church from 1927 to 1930; and had been matron of Bettina chapter, O. E. S. She was elected president of the Woman's City club May 16, and was installed at the May 23 meeting, which closed the 1929-30 season.

"Survivors beside the widower are a sister, Mrs. R. C. Root, Stockton; and two brothers, R. C. Ramsey of San Francisco and Harold Ramsey of Portland. Mr. Powers serves the Shell Oil Company as technical advisor, having been employed a number of years in that capacity."

London To Hit At Old Dobbin

Horse-Drawn Vehicles Will Be Excluded on Busy Thoroughfares

LONDON, Oct. 3—(UP)— Old Dobbin, faithful but slow, soon is to to ruled off of London's busy thoroughfares.

The decision to bar horse vehicles and delivery vans during rush hours was reached by Minister of Transport Herbert Morrison as part of a scheme to solve congested traffic difficulties which are becoming an increasingly serious problem.

Under the Road Traffic Act recently drafted the country will be divided into areas controlled by traffic commissioners who will have jurisdiction over tramcars, omnibuses, taxicabs and motorcoaches.

It is pointed out tramcars are even too slow and may be sharply curtailed in number. Whether more buses will be permitted, however, is problematical. Instead, it has been suggested that the bus service be speeded up as a move toward relieving congestion.

The cruising taxicab also may be reduced in number. There have been complaints of drivers disregarding signals and otherwise obstructing traffic and all are certain to be closely observed in the future with a view to eliminating some.

One of the first problems to be discussed, experts say, is that of motor-coaches. There are no suggestions thus far on how they should be regulated.

MENLO PARK

On Friday evening October 17, Mothers Club of Menlo Park will hold a card party in the grammar school auditorium. Good prizes have been donated for the occasion. The proceeds of the party will go towards buying a radio for St. Joseph's Parochial school. The cause is a worthy one and no doubt will receive the full support of the citizens of Menlo Park.

The total rain fall for the recent rain was thirty-five one-hundredths of an inch. There was no rain at this time last year, although a little later there was a big downpour.

Francis Glynn has been awarded the contract to pack the mail from the Southern Pacific depot to the postoffice the prosaic duties of the position is not altogether to the liking of Francis and he may in time abandon Uncle Sam's service.

The grammar school trustees have created a new teachers' position and have filled the place by the appointment of Miss Rosmond Boulware of Redwood City, a graduate of the State Teachers' College of San Jose. She is a clever and bright young lady, fully competent to handle the job.

Patrick Carroll, a brother of James Carroll, cashier of the tax collector's office in San Francisco and well-known here, passed away in the city last week. The deceased was well-known in political circles of the metropolis having held many positions of trust in the municipality.

Just think of it, Ward E. Monroe local realty operator, has been licensed to swear. Last week he was appointed a notary public by Governor C. C. Young and in a position to swear anyone desiring to take an oath.

The ball to be given by the Menlo Park Fire Department of October 8 will be a big affair. The fire boys do good work and should be encouraged.

The duck season opened auspiciously Wednesday for hunters. Many good strings of the birds were brought to town. W. T. Casey, the veteran sportsman, was out bright and early and brought in the limit in widgeon and teal.

A number of the wealthy citizens in Menlo Park and vicinity have closed their residences and gone to their hibernal homes in the city for the winter. Among those leaving this week were W. B. Weir, Hugh Porter, E. L. Eyre, A. Taylor, Mrs. Lowery, the Stints, and the Hopkins.

Don Coe, prize fighter and a former restaurant man of this city, was jailed Tuesday on complaint of his wife. He is held on a battery charge.

Fred Hummel who was injured in an automobile accident at the corner of Glenwood avenue and the Middlefield Road, was amply paid by Mrs. Chandler who ran into him last July. Hummel was given a substantial sum before a suit for damages was filed. James T. O'Keefe represented Hummel in the matter.

Mayor Weeden is residing at St. Helena while engaged in erecting a green house there for a wealthy resident of that place. He will be home for the city council meeting next Tuesday.

Many Menlo Park citizens were called to Redwood City during the week to serve on the La Honda well murder trial. They went in response to a special summons by the court for jurymen outside of the regular pannel that was exhausted. Mr. Cox, manager of Felton Gables, was the only one that qualified.

Edward Weeden is alarmingly ill at his home on the highway. His life is ebbing fast away and very little hope is entertained for his ultimate recovery. Mr. Weeden is one of the best known and best beloved men in the community.

Menlo Parlor, N .S. W. G. will celebrate the anniversary of the organization of the parlor in Menlo Park next Thursday evening with a dinner in Masonic Hall. A few of the remaining charter members are to be present to relate the story of the early history and trials of the parlor. The society was instituted on September 5, 1892. D. E. O'Keefe was the first president and James Andrews first past president.

Last Saturday evening at Cafe De Paris at Ahterton, officials of the city government and others met at a dinner given in honor of the retiring city judge, David Patrick and his successor, Judge Hoss. Many prominent citizens of the county were present, all speaking in glowing terms of the young judge who has given up the bench to give all his attention to his duties as instructor at Stanford. In the midst of the festivities Mayor Weeden arose and in a nicely phrased speech presented Judge Patrick with a suitably inscribed loving cup on behalf of the judge's friends in Menlo Park. Mr. Patrick was somewhat overcome with emotion but made a neat response of appreciation for the gift. City Attorney Whitworth lauded the retiring jurist for his fairness and good judgment while on the bench. His successor, Judge Hoss hoped to reach the high mark of efficiency set for him by his predecessor. Chief Love, Councilmen Crane and Anderson also gave praise to the retiring official. The evening was an enjoyable one and a happy termination of the judicial experience of Judge Patrick and a fitting welcome to his successor.

The D. D. Bohannan Company having sold all the lots in Menalto Park, has taken over the New Bridge property and Bay Shore Park, the Nash holdings, and will start a new campaign to dispose of these properties by the lunch and lecture system. Mr. Bohannan is accounted the ablest real estate developer in the country.

Yesterday the Menlo Junior College football team left for Santa Ana to play a junior college aggregation there. The local boys are in fine fettle, well trained and are sanguine of success tomorrow when the contest takes place. Dudley De Groot, the coach, says his team will win. Fleishhacker, the assistant coach agrees with him that the Menlo boys will bring home the "bacon" or the pigskin.

AUTO BUYERS WARNED OF FAKE SELLERS BY MOTOR VEHICLE DEPT.

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 2(UP)—Prospective automobile buyers today were warned by Frank G. Snook, chief of the state division of motor vehicles, to demand a certificate of title (pink slip) when purchasing machines from individuals.

Many cases have been brought to the attention of the division recently, Snook said, where the buyer has made a substantial payment for a car without first securing the pink slip, only to discover later that the seller who promptly disappeared, was not the legal owner.

"The pink certificate constitutes the sole evidence of ownership in California," Snook said, "and is as necessary as a deed to a piece of real estate. It is designated to protect the buyer."

Germans Adopt Scottish Pastime for Training

BERLIN, Oct. 2—(UP)—Scotland will have to look out for itself now or one of these days she will find a stalwart German turning up at the Highland Games and carying off all the prizes for sports that hitherto have been exclusively Scottish.

The German Army, it is announced has just adopted tossing the caber as part of its physical instruction course, and the Reichswehrmen are proving apt pupils, handling the great tree-log with skill and muscle.

WOODSIDE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry MacArthur left last week for their home in Pale Alto. They had been at their summer home here since the first of July.

Mrs. Emma Andreeri, who has been spending the summer with her son at Tulsa, Oklahoma has returned to California. She is now visiting her daughter in San Francisco but will return to her home in Woodside next week.

Rev. Benjamin St. John went to Berkeley on Tuesday to be in at-Pacific Slope Convention of Congregational Churches.

The Woodside Parent-Teacher Association held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday at the school auditorium. Mrs. Hoover of San Mateo, Parliamentarian for the 17th District, P.-T. A. ,was the speaker

James V. Neuman, Jr., a graduate of the Woodside school and of Sequoia high, following in the footsteps of his father, has matriculated at Stanford University and has already taken up his residence at Encina Hall.

A. B. Swinnerton and family returned to their home in San Francisco on Tuesday.

A home in Woodside is no longer considered complete without a swimming pool. Herman Wobber is the latest to begin the construction of one of these social certificates.

The members of the Woodside Fire Department are planning a dance to be given at the Woodside Hall on the night of October 18th.

The pee-wee golf course being built by F. W. Mowwe is nearing completion and Woodside enthusiasts for the game are limbering up for a try at the 13 holes. A great deal of labor has gone into the planning of the course and its attractiveness should draw patrons from a distance as well as the local golfers.

GEO. EIKERINKOTTER STRICKEN AT WORK

George Eikerenkotter ,pioneer resident of Redwood City, suffered a stroke of paralysis while at work in the county court house yesterday shortly after the noon hour. He was removed to his home at 408 Stambaugh street, and was still in a state of coma up to late last evening. Dr. F. S. Gregory, the attending physician, says it will be several days perhaps before there is any change in the stricken man's condition.

Mr. Eikerenkotter is a member of one of San Mateo county's early pioneer families. He spent his boyhood days at Saersville (now Portola) and for the past 40 years has resided in Redwood City. He is one of the bestknown hunters and fishermen of this section of the State.

NEW SERVICE OFFERED BY MOTOR COACH LINE

Designed for the greater accommodation of patrons of Pacific Greyhound Lines, revised schedules will be placed in effect October1 on services from San Francisco to the Monterey Peninsula and Coast Mission Highway points, according to an announcement made by H. A. Wooster, general traffic manager of the motorcoach company.

Frequency of services have been arranged to meet the popular demand for transportation between the various points. Through services are supplemented, in many instances, by local services affording direct connections.

Points affected by the changed schedules include Santa Cruz and Monterey Peninsula points via Palo Alto and Los Gatos, Watsonville, Gilroy, Salinas, Castroville, Monterey, Pacific Grove, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura and Los Angeles.

Shortage in Water Faces San Francisco

San Francisco will face a water shortage if the rainfall this year is under normal, according to a statement by Nelson Eckhart, general manager of the San Francisco water system. Eckhart stated that only a 90 day supply of water will remain in the Spring Valley Lakes which supply San Francisco and peninsulas areas, after January 1.

The shortage is one of the most serious in the history of San Francisco, supervisors were informed.

The report was accompanied by recommendations of a special committee that an emergency be declared and work speeded on a proposed thirty-six-inch pipe line from Niles or Newark to San Lorenzo, connecting with a supply line of the East Bay Municipal Utilities district.

Arrangements were recently completed for an emergency supply of 30,000,000 gallons daily from the East Bay district, said the committee. The cost of the pipe line will be from $1,500,000 to $2,5000,000 depending on the amount of water to be transferred. The committee recommended that the San Francisco board of works be directed to call immediately for bids on installation of the line.

The regular thirty-minute service between San Francisco and San Jose is also available for motorcoach patrons.

CLARENCE SAUNDERS
SOLE OWNER OF MY NAME

I GRIP YOUR HAND:
Good and Strong and Tell You

That I am here in California to make every Clarence Saunders Store boom with more business—with more pep—with newer ways of merchandising that will please every customer.

We are going to have more Clarence Saunders Stores—we will stretch them from one town to another all over California and into the wide country toward the East but always we shall point to the Clarence Saunders Stores of California as the model in up-to-date merchandising.

They will not be Wall Street Stores, but stores in which the Customers are partners with me. This is the ideal that I am working to accomplish and I know that with the people themselves as my partners we will forge ahead as the greatest organization of all in the Chain Store Business.

Get it into your head and remember, that to trade with a Clarence Saunders Store will be like trading with home folks and like trading with yourself if you become a partner with me in my new plan for a chain of Clarence Saunders Stores with the people themselves as partners of Clarence Saunders.

Everywhere the Spirit is abroad to get away from Wall Street Control and that is the plan that I am offering to you.
